

Asian American Architects/Engineers Association Presents:

Higher Education: An Economic Engine Reshaping Southern California

Thursday, May 22, 2014 - 11:30am-1:30pm

About the Program:

The Higher Education sector has claimed its place as a major economic engine in Southern California. The influence of the more than 150 campuses in the region continues to shape the physical landscape, in addition to providing a spirit of academic and cultural discovery. Join us for a panel discussion with campus leaders from UCLA, CSULA, USC, and Rancho Santiago CCD and learn about the latest trends guiding this industry in the Southland.

Panelists:

Jeff Averill, Campus Architect, University of California Los Angeles

Warren Jacobs, Interim Associate Vice President for Facilities, Planning, Design and Construction, CSU Los Angeles

Carri Matsumoto, Assistant Vice Chancellor, Rancho Santiago Community College District

Representative from University of Southern California

Moderator: Sonnet Hui, Steinberg Architects
