About the Program:

This program will feature leaders from LAWA, LA Metro and HR&A discussing the planning and delivery of large urban infrastructure projects under a Public-Private Partnership (P3). The panel will explore the importance of communication with stakeholders, cultivation of a collaborative process, and the benefits of a progressive approach to this unique project delivery model. This discussion will be of particular interest to leaders in the AEC community (including planners, architects, landscape architects, engineers, consultants, contractors, and construction managers), small businesses, and impact investors to learn about the latest trends in the industry.
