

Asian American Architects/Engineers Association Presents:

Avoiding Day Zero: Why Southern California is Different than Cape Town

Thursday, April 26, 2018 - 11:30am-1:30pm

Speakers:

Deven Upadhyay, Assistant General Manager/Chief Operating Officer
Metropolitan Water District of Southern California

Moderators:

Steve Hirai, Vice President
Parsons

Program Description:

The water shortage experience in Cape Town is severe and shocking. Although prolonged drought conditions have occurred in our region in recent years, could this ever happen in Southern California? Mr. Deven Upadhyay, Assistant General Manager and Chief Operating Officer for the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California, will discuss why our experience in Southern California is so different and how forward thinking, such as the California Water Fix, will protect this region for the future.
