What's in store for Water and Power in L.A.?

Thursday, March 23, 2017 - 11:30am-1:30pm

Speakers:

Susan Rowghani, Director, Water Engineering & Technical Services, LADWP Water System
Louis Ting, Director, Power Planning & Development, LADWP Power System
Gwendolyn W. Williams, Director of Supply Chain Services, LADWP

Moderators:

Steve Hirai, PARSONS
Keith Kajiya, AECOM

Program Description:

The largest municipal water and power utility in the nation, LADWP serves over 4 million Angelenos. With millions in revenue from a recently approved rate increase, the utility is replacing aging water and power infrastructure to ensure future service reliability, transforming water supplies to confront drought and create a sustainable water future, and transforming the power supply to meet clean energy mandates. Come learn what new project opportunities LADWP has in store for your firms.
